Notes:

The Great 'O' Antiphons begin on December 17th and continue until December 23rd. Which of the seven will be occluded by the Sunday in each of seven possible years is thus determinable from this chart.

The Feast of the Holy Name was appointed for the Sunday between January 2nd to January 5th if a Sunday occurred during that span in that year. If not, then simply on January 2nd.

The Octave of Epiphany runs from January 6th to January 13th, but the readings at Matins, for example, are somewhat complicated by the question of what weekday Epiphany falls on. The readings for the week of the First Sunday of Epiphany begin immediately after the first Sunday occurring after January 6th, even if it falls with days in the Octave still remaining. The readings for the numbered “Days within the Octave” are only used before that Sunday.

There are, confusingly, also two ways the Sunday can be interpreted, which traditionally each had their own possible readings. The “Sunday within the Octave of Epiphany” (replaced later by Holy Family) was used if the Sunday fell any day other than the Octave Day itself. The “First Sunday After Epiphany” was used only if the Octave Day itself fell on a Sunday (in which case the “Sunday within the Octave”/Feast of the Holy Family was kept on the day before, the Saturday; this is why there are no special Matins readings given for the 7th Day in the Octave.)

* Sundays marked in an asterisk represent possibly days that (a rather early) Septuagesima Sunday could occur. Rarely, if Septuagesima Sunday falls on one of the earliest possible dates (January 18th is the earliest), and Epiphany falls on a Sunday, Monday, or Tuesday, the Second Sunday of Epiphany may be anticipated on the Saturday, and its week won’t occur that year.
